

Because of their deep and continuous need for one another shall the people worship.

And who will lead in the ways of light, justice, wisdom and peace?

Not they that say some stand with me on the heights, but they that say come, let us find together the ascending path.

Let them that know little, but who long greatly for instruction and them that are humble in their knowledge be the leaders.

For no one is wise in all things above others. They that are ready to follow have already shown the way.

Together shall the congregation grow in knowledge, and in the ways of understanding and strength.

Each shall learn from the others, and none shall be pressed to take that which meets not the individual need.

Not for themselves alone shall they gather the treasures of their days, but to share with all humanity the riches of abundant life.

Thus shall the years together yield their blessings to pastor and people, and add to the building of the day of peace and gladness in all the earth.

Special Music

Closer to Fine
- Indigo Girls

Kristin E. Thomas

Reading

Feeling the Sacred
- Beverly Tricco

Readers:

Glenn Brown
Renee Caruso-Collins
Carissa Milham
Merrill Milham

Introduction

Dyrck Van Dusen

Sermon

The Passion of Our Faith

Rev. Paul Hull

Prayer

Rev. Hull